adding classroom

The screenshot shows the 'adding seats' interface of a learning management system. At the top, the user is logged in as 'Terry Austin | Temple College | Log out'. The navigation bar includes 'Courses', 'Questions', 'or...', 'Licenses', 'Tour', and 'Help'. The main heading is 'classrooms at temple college'. A red callout box labeled 'add a single seat' points to the '+ Add seat' button. Another red callout box labeled 'or...' points to the 'or...' link in the navigation bar. A third red callout box labeled 'add a block of seats... adjust # of seats in block' points to the '+ Add block of size' button. Below these buttons, there are input fields for '5' across and '5' down, with a 'Instructions' link. The main area is a large gray rectangle representing the classroom layout. At the top of this area is a label 'back of room' with an upward-pointing red arrow. At the bottom is a label 'front of room' with a downward-pointing red arrow. A red callout box labeled 'notice FRONT/BACK of room indicators for easy reference' is positioned between these two labels. At the bottom of the interface, there is a 'Name' field with the text 'New Room' and a 'Save' button.
